

Human life cycles

Animals are very small when they are born and change as they get older. The changes that happen to an animal are called its life cycle. The diagram below shows the human life cycle.

Humans need to be looked after for a long time after they are born. Humans often need to be looked after when they are very old, too. Old people are often unwell and may have weak bones and muscles.

1. Write down two ways in which your parents look after you.

2. What can you do for yourself that you could not do when you were a baby?

3. What will you be able to do when you are an adult that you cannot do now?
