

Flood alert

Proofread this radio news report.

Change anything that does not look or sound correct.

Hints

- Check that everything is clear and sounds right.
- Check that the punctuation has been used correctly and effectively.
- Check that the spelling is correct.

All day water levels have continyued to rise threatning many homes.

Mr Jackson the chief flood officer said of coarse, many people are feeling anxtious. And we are offerring advise and assistance wherever possable."

The floods have also caused caos across the transport sistem. Earlier today police called the roads 'trecherus' and said that people aught to remain in their homes some drivers cars were underwater.

Eric Brown an expolice officer who lives in the village told us he could not believe how quickly the water rose. He said we're just releived to be safe.

Even though there has been torrenshal rain for sevarel days it seems people recieved no offisial warning.

Acording to weather forcasters more rain is expected this evening so the situation could possibley worsen.

Extra

Imagine that you are to present a radio news report about a hurricane that hit your area last night. On a separate sheet of paper, write the beginning of your report.